Caring for infants and toddlers requires caregivers to consider a child's temperament, family experiences, and cultural influences. Temperament is the way children respond to the world. Differences in temperament influence the way children handle emotions, regulate behavior and feel around new people. Understanding this helps infant and toddler teachers/caregivers build positive relationships with each child. Come learn how you can nurture children's development by using what suits their own individual temperaments.

In the blink of an eye, a child in your program could become injured or lost. Keeping children safe is your most important responsibility! How can you watch all these small children all of the time and still provide an exciting learning environment? What can you do to make sure all children are safe at all times? Come learn ways to provide children with competent supervision that you can make to enhance your program's supervision of children. We will also examine the OCFS regulations on supervision. Is it time to rethink a play-center classroom?
